

Campus Cooking 101: Easy and Cheap Recipes You Can Make in Your Dorm Room

At a recent family gathering, I was talking with my nephew Michael who attends Rutgers about the cookbooks we have been working on. He listened to some of the titles and wondered why there wasn't anything that was geared to college students. Students have different needs than families do in that recipes need to be inexpensive, take next to no time to prepare, have some flavor to them, and not involve a lot of pots, pans or equipment. We know you can have a bowl of cereal for dinner (or maybe a container of ice cream) but there is a better way. Oh, we wanted the recipes to be ones you might want to share with a roommate or create an excuse for a date. There are some things you can use for each meal plus snacks and desserts. All are pretty easy. If you have leftovers, put them in containers from Chinese food you've ordered before and save them in the refrigerator. Those are the seeds that spawned Campus Cooking 101. We hope you find these recipes easy and help give you ideas that you can play with.
